

All The Things I Do

By Dasha Kaocharoen

I have no limits; can you guess my purpose?

I can lead a band as a baton or be twirled by majorettes.

I can direct a symphony while in the conductor's hands.

I can scribble across a void of whiteness and cover it with swirls.

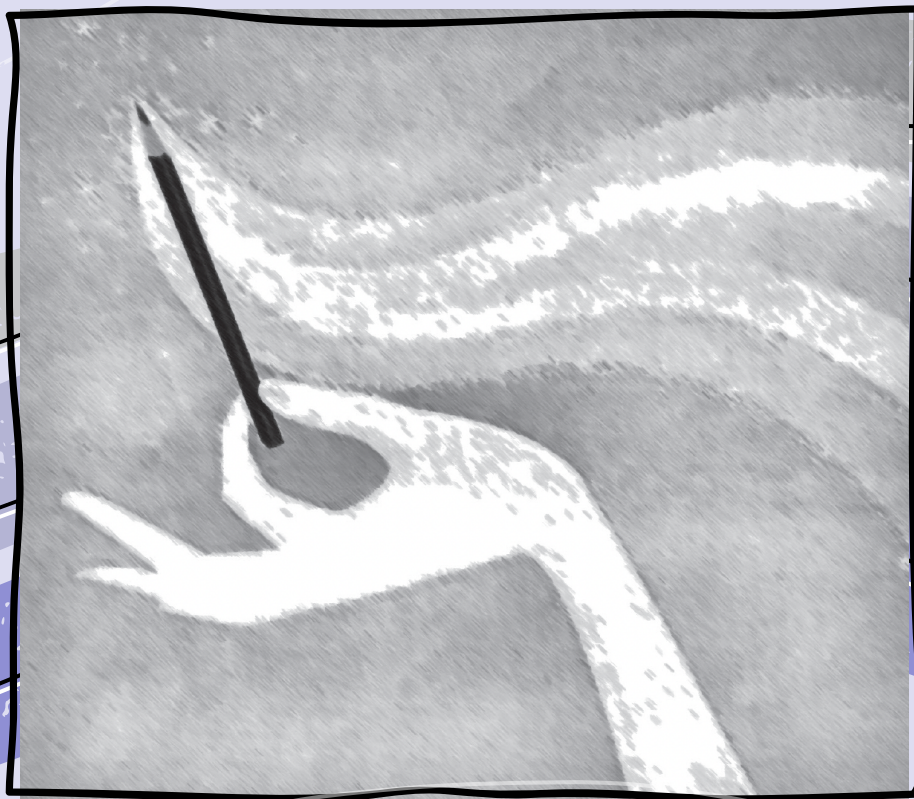

I can even write a sea of numbers on lines that intersect.

I can be found between fingers of a person calmly writing their thoughts.

Other times, I'm under a shelf, dusty and forgotten.

Usually, I am seemingly dull; quite sullen, boring, and useless.

But once I get shaved down, I'm sharp, new, and fresh all over again.

Dasha Kaocharoen loves to read, write, and draw and enjoys typing short stories on the computer. Dasha's favorite books are graphic novels. Some other favorites include author, Dav Pilkey, and illustrator, John Rocco. When not reading, you can find Dasha playing soccer, or swimming. Dasha is a member of the Wilde Snail Creative Writers' Club in Phoenix, Arizona.