

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Kids can change the world, and you are living proof! My advice for young change-makers is to use your unique gifts and talents to do good. Use your athletic ability, musical talent, or artistic skills to spread joy. What makes you sad or angry? Instead of complaining, do something about it! Raise your voice- your words have tremendous power. Take action- collect food, clothes, books, and toys for people in need. Clean up a park. Stand up against bullying and hate. Give more light, love, laughter, and hope. Little acts of kindness create little ripples that can change the world.

Your friend,
Maxwell Surprenant/Teen Editor